

MvP: Management Visit Program Workshop Overview

Objectives:

On completion of this one-day workshop, participants will have received instruction and tutoring on using the MvP™ process to:

- Redefine the principal objectives of senior and executive management site visits;
- Gain a level of competence in conducting an effective management site visit;
- Recognize that many of the stubborn daily safety and operational challenges are as much owned by management as at the worksite;
- Use management site visits as the means to complement existing Behavioral Based Safety (BBS) programs while ensuring wider, more systemic issues are readily identified and addressed;
- Learn how to quickly build trust and engage workers, so they feel comfortable speaking up about the real issues behind many unplanned events;
- Ensure everyone is left in action – both management and at worksite;
- Learn how to monitor and measure the effectiveness of management site visits by the value of the actions taken;
- Learn how to better plan and follow through on management site visits;
- Establish an effective single line of sight so that both management and workers alike are focused on the same, underlying issues and challenges;
- Maximize improvement opportunities;
- Recognize and celebrate breakthroughs and successes.

Who Should Attend:

- Senior and executive management personnel who conduct field visits;
- Persons required to measure the effectiveness of management site visits.

Prerequisite: None. Prior attendance at a vPSI foundation workshop is suggested.

Customization: This course can be customized with clients' own material.
